

EFF CONGRATULATES NKOSINATHI “BLACK COFFEE” MAPHUMULO FOR WINNING HIS FIRST GRAMMY AWARD

Monday, 04 April 2022

The Economic Freedom Fighters congratulates Nkosinathi Maphumulo, popularly known as Black Coffee, for winning a Grammy Award for the best dance/electronic album. Coffee was given this award for his album Subconsciously, which was released in 2021. Black Coffee’s achievement brings tremendous pride to the country and the continent, in a time of great strife in the entertainment industry.

Having established himself as one of the greatest musical exports Africa has produced, Black Coffee’s win is the first time a South African producer has been nominated and actually gone on to win the prestigious award.

As an African musician, he joins the likes of Ladysmith Black Mambazo, The Soweto Gospel Choir, Ali Farka Tourè, Burna Boy and Wizkid in winning the award, while pitted against some of the greatest talents across the world.

Black Coffee now stands as one of the few Africans who have displayed talent beyond measure, placing the continent on the global stage of creative arts and musical innovation.

The EFF congratulates Black Coffee on his award and wishes him more success in the future. May he remain a beacon of light to all South African artists, and an example that beauty and talent can emerge from hardship.
